

Farris Funeral Service is committed to the health and safety of the families we serve, our community and our staff. We understand how difficult this current pandemic has been and the impact it has left on our community. As of July 1, 2020, Governor Ralph Northam made an announcement that the Commonwealth of Virginia will be entering into Phase 3 of the “Forward Virginia” plan to safely easing public health regulations.

With the loosening of restrictions, we are here to offer more ways of memorialization for your loved ones. This includes an increase in the number of individuals allowed in the building while still practicing social distancing and the wearing of a face covering. For your convenience, we will have masks available at each entrance. This is to protect you, the ones around you, and the family we are serving.

We are still encouraging the public to leave condolences to the families we serve via our internet website, <https://www.farrisfuneralservice.com> or call our office and we will add your name to the register book for you.

We will continue to offer live streaming and recording services for services conducted in our Main Street Chapel. We will also continue to offer our “Hugs from Home,” program for those that cannot attend the service in person.

We thank the community for their support, understanding, and being there for each other during these ever-changing times.
